"MADE IN FRANCE"

A. Y. M. C. A. Physical Director Has Taught the French Glove Factory How to Make Boxing Gloves

Paris, Jan. 10.—"Carrying coals to Newcastle" is nothing to the job that "Sparrow" Robertson, a Y. M. C. A. physical director in France is now putting over. Or so it would seem at first glance, anyhow. "Sparrow" is teaching the French to make gloves.

Wait! Don't get excited! It isn't so bad as it sounds. Nobody can teach the French anything about the art of making kid gloves, of course. It is generally conceded that in turning out the finer grades they are equal, if not superior, to anyone else in the world.

"Sparrow" is far too modest to think that he can step in to improve one of the leading and most successful industries of France. He would as soon attempt to teach Ty Cobb to hit or Jim Thorpe to play football. What he is really going to do is to teach them to make boxing gloves for use in fistic matches at Red Triangle centers.

There is a great scarcity of padded mitts in France. In spite of the efforts of the Y. M. C. A. to bring them from America, to buy them in England and in France, there aren't enough in sight to supply half or even a third of the men that want to maul somebody in the ring. In order to solve the problem it was decided to induce French glove makers to manufacture them. It took some persuasion, too, for building a dainty "gant" for a girl and an eight ounce swatter for a fighter are two very different things. The manufacturers finally said that if somebody would show them just what was wanted they would give it a trial.

Before becoming a Y. M. C. A. physical director "Sparrow" was in the boxing glove manufacturing line at home and he volunteered to go down into the glove-making district of France and get the new industry started. He is giving instruction in cutting, stuffing, and so on, and it will not be long before the quality of gloves turned out over here will be good enough to satisfy a world's champion. In fact, the French say that once they get the "hang" of the thing, they will be making just as good gloves for fistic purposes as they do for adding a final touch to a lady's toilette. As theirs will be all hand work, they certainly ought to be able to compete with machine-made maulers of manufacturers in other countries.

WORTH $50.00 A BOTTLE

Wm. Barnes, San Antonio, Tex., writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar" is the best cough remedy in the world. It has been worth $50 a bottle to me. I had the flu followed by pneumonia, which left me weak, with a persistent cough. I needed rest and sleep, which I was unable to get. Some one advised Foley's Honey and Tar. I began taking it that very night. Before bed time I noticed relief, and that night had a sound sleep and perfect night's rest, the first time since the beginning of the flu. I have completely recovered and do not cough at all. It cost me only $1.20 to cure that obstinate cough."

PARENTS, READ THIS

How a Father Has Learned to Save Shoe Bills.

"My son is very hard on shoes, so keeping him properly shod has been quite an expense to me," writes Mr. J. Allison Allen, of Amity, Arkansas. "But since I started to buy Neolin-soled shoes for him I have found that it costs only about a third as much to keep him in shoes."

This is because Neolin Soles are so tough and durable that they wear a very long time. Shoe bills are kept down because you don't need so many pairs.

You can get Neolin-soled shoes at almost any good shoe store. They come in all styles and for all members of the family. Neolin Soles are also available everywhere for re-soles. They are produced by a scientific process to be what shoes ought to be: comfortable, waterproof and long-wearing. They are made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels, guaranteed to outwear any other heels.

FOWLS IN WINTER QUARTERS

Careful Handling While Moving Will Prevent Setback in Proper Production of Eggs.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The ideal way to manage laying hens is to have suitable houses at maturity, with other yards or ranges suited to the flock while growing, and have each flock of layers occupy the same quarters all their lives. If pullets must be moved from the quarters they have occupied during the growing season every effort should be made to make the change as little disturbing to them as possible. The method of removal will not be the same for all cases and conditions. Each poultry keeper must consider the situation as it exists for his stock and adapt his treatment to the circumstances.

Make the Change Early.

In general it is desirable that pullets be in the houses they are to occupy during the winter three or four weeks before they are expected to lay; but if the pullets are on a good range, and placing them in winter quarters would deprive them of this and make it necessary to put them on winter rations several months earlier than if they remain on the range, it may be better to leave them in the small coops in which they were grown until winter. Then, if they are moved gently and carefully, and special attention is given to making them comfortable and contented in their new home, the change may have but slight effect on their egg production.

Whether the change to permanent winter quarters is made before or after laying begins, gentle handling and good treatment will go a long way toward offsetting the unfavorable effects of moving pullets. In reality it is not the change that is the chief disturbing factor but the way the change is made. Rapid and rough handling is bad, yet most persons think it too much bother to handle hens gently and carefully. A little extra time and care in moving pullets makes a difference of weeks and sometimes months in egg production.
